Epidemic continues On the Decline.

Withdrawal of Mask Order is Generally Appreciated.

The influenza is gradually abating in Coleman, and while there are still a number of new cases daily and new premises quarantined, the number is growing rapidly less and there is a settled conviction that a short time will see the community free of the pest.

The release from the masks was generally appreciated and very few chose to wear them voluntarily. They might have prevented the spread of the flu but they went a long way towards preventing everything else as a man was only about fifty per cent effective when wearing one.

The Hospital

When the epidemic is over we will begin to realize what we owe to the temporary hospital in the school house, and appreciate to the full the heroism of the voluntary nursing services of the teachers, who came nobly to the rescue when the town was in difficulty. With Mrs. T. Barnes as matron, and Misses E. E. Atkinson, P. Purdy, C. Disney, C. McKenzie I. Young, P. McNeil and G. F. Wilson as nurses, and Miss E. Ford in charge of the kitchen, and Miss Stewart as seamstress the hospital has done work of which everyone is proud. Fortunately all escaped infection, and in consequence we will have them all here to fittingly compensate their splendid services.

Figures showing the magnitude of the good work done unfortunately were received too late for this issue, but they demonstrate the school hospital was one of the main issues in the in the successful handling of the epidemic.

Arrangements Under Way for Curling and Skating

Curling Rink Now in Course of Construction.

A meeting of the committees of the curling club was held in the Bulletin office on Thursday night, when arrangements for getting the rink in operation as soon as completed. Mr. Disney who has the contract for the rink building will have it ready for occupation early in December. The skating rink will be flooded and made ready for business as soon as the weather will permit.

A committee was appointed to look after the securing of a caretaker and the providing of the necessary equipment for operating both rinks, and active steps will be taken to see that no frost is lost.

The curling club has gone to considerable trouble and expense in providing skating facilities for the town and it is anticipated the skating fraternity will support them in the effort.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Cancellation of war contracts involving more than $1,336,000,000 since the signing of the armistice is announced in a letter from Secretary Baker read to the senate today by Senator Martin, of Virginia, chairman of the appropriation committee.

Dave Price has recovered from the flu and is now on duty at his usual occupation.

G. R. Marnoch Thanks Local Workers For Victory Loan.

G. R. Marnoch, vice-chairman for Southern Alberta, and the man mainly responsible for the organization south of Calgary, has written a very appreciative letter thanking the organization in the Crows Nest Pass District for their strenuous efforts in making the 1918 Victory Loan the success that it was.

The local organization was as follows:

O. E. S. Whiteside, Honorary Chairman.
J. R. Smith, Secretary.
EXECUTIVE MEMBERS

All the canvassers were also included, these last mentioned, and the team captains of course, having the most strenuous part of the work.

Flag and Nine Crowns Captured By Coleman.

Almost Three Times Allotment Secured for Victory Loan.

Now that the Victory Loan is completed and Coleman has made such an enviable record by capturing a flag and nine crowns, we can begin to realize what a privilege it is to live in such a town.

With an objective of $81,000 a total of $207,000 was reached, to the joy of the hard working committee and canvassers. Following we give the result by nationalities, with the exception of the splendid subscriptions made by the mining companies.

British	78,800
Czecho Slovaks	8,900
Belgian	3,750

BRITISH VICTORIES ARE CHEERED BY PUBLIC UNTIL FORBIDDEN

NORWEGIANS ARE HAPPY OVER DEFEAT OF HUNS

People Have Suffered Much and Half of Norway's Original Fleet Has Been Sunk by German Submarines—Two Million Tons of Shipping Placed at Service of Allies

The Norwegian public is following with outspoken delight the victorious advance of the allies. "Splendid news today" means as a matter of course an allied victory. The press no longer pretends to be neutral, as the Germans long ago violated Norwegian neutrality by murdering Norwegian sailors, by bomb explosions, and by fires.

In the first days of the advance the "Marcelline" was being demonstrated in the music halls, and British victories were cheered by the public until it was forbidden. Most Germans have now left the country, feeling that the ground is too hot for them, and the remaining ones try to speak English in the buses and in the railways and restaurants. On the national day the annual fish procession of all the school children, when passing the British consulate, burst out in cheers, and the teachers were unable to stop them.

It is proof of the solid sympathy for the allies that Norwegians have been able to withstand the overwhelming propaganda from the German side. The German newspapers and press correspondence from Berlin arrive here in two days, while the British newspapers and letters from London journalists do not arrive here until three, four or five weeks after they have been posted. The German propaganda had actually succeeded in making the people here believe that the Americans could not arrive in time to prevent the defeat of the allies. The marvelous sight of an American army carried across the Atlantic undisturbed by the U-boat war has raised a new spirit of enthusiasm.

The Norwegian people generally have suffered much during the war. It is true that some people have gained millions, and wages have been raised for all classes, but the prices of living have risen correspondingly.

Norway may claim to have done two great things for the allies. She was at first a great help in keeping Sweden from joining Germany, and she has, at the most critical time of the U-boat war, when even American ships stopped leaving German harbors, placed about 2,000,000 tons of shipping at the service of the allies. Almost all of Norway's products, consisting of fish, minerals and nitrates, are exported for the allies, in return for coal and food.

Many people here think that Norway in this way has served the right cause better than if she had joined in the war, as that might have complicated the situation.

Half of the original Norwegian fleet, with 1,100 sailors, has been sunk by German submarines. The press says openly that the purpose of Germany in torpedoing neutral ships, regardless of their cargo and destination, is not the starvation of England, as alleged, but is aimed at the direct destruction of neutral shipping to make her own mercantile fleet more valuable after the war. It is felt here that stronger measures should now be taken to prevent the self-destruction of Norway against the willful destruction of her mercantile fleet by the German U-boats.

The Horror Of Flame Throwing

Common Addition to Soldiers' Burdens

Although British flame throwers are used both in practice and in action, the instrument has not been in general employment. The best will carry more than one hundred yards, emitting a scarlet flame of great breadth and height, so hot as to char even a stony and grassless surface.

But the favorite German flame thrower is much smaller and is more easily handled. Its range is short, but it has an equally destructive flame. The instrument has been manufactured in great quantities, and is now a quite common addition to the soldiers' burden. The bearer needs an extra dose of courage if he is hit by a shell, he is instantly incensed—and in the case of the larger machines, the effect of a shell is much the same as if a dump were hit.

And the danger begins even earlier than this in the history of the flame thrower. The most pitiful of all the letters read during the war was the account given by a German mother of how certain girls of their little country town had been shrivelled to cinders owing to an accident in the "fire making factory." Throughout the letter, ran the motif of a Greek tragedy, the continuous note of terror lest lawless vengeance proper against others even during peace should inevitably devour its authors.

Why Britain Is Short of Coal

Winter Will Not Be Passed Without Suffering

There will not be enough coal in Great Britain to heat the houses of the people during the coming winter. The announcement is made by the London Daily Chronicle not in a spirit of complaint, but merely as an unpleasant fact. "Nobody will have enough coal," is the conclusion of the whole matter. Even the rationing, it is said, is no guarantee that the coal allowed to each individual will be available.

The reasons for this shortage are varied but unanswerable. The army has taken 75,000 men from the mines, and those who remain will not work full time. Moreover, they refuse to work beside German prisoners, who otherwise must be employed as a make-shift labor supply. France requires more coal than usual, since the spring offensive of the Germans captured the only coal areas left for French use. Last year the total allotment in France was 1½ tons a year per household. The need in Italy is even more desperate, and Holland is trading ships to the extent for coal. Moreover the new American army must be kept warm and provided with cooking fires. Great Britain must supply the coal for these two millions.

It is not expected that the winter will be passed without suffering, but the minimum of distress will be experienced by a careful and accurate observance of the regulations of the fuel controller. Canadians talk of a coal shortage when 70 per cent of the peace-time allotment is available. Let them think of the peasants of the Vosges, with less than 2 tons a year for each household—and that not comparable in quality to Pennsylvania anthracite—Toronto News.

A Typical German Trick

If proof were wanting of the diabolical methods practised by the Germans in destroying villages and towns by mines, poisoning rivers and wells and generally making life impossible for returning refugees, it is found in a document which has just fallen into the hands of a French divisional headquarters. This document concerns the 108th Battalion of German infantry, and bears the date Sept. 8, 1918. The first part deals with the systematic destruction of barracks, gunpits and dugouts abandoned in retreat. Further on it orders the 27th and 90th German regiments to destroy the villages of Villeneuve, Hautmont, Lequesnel and others. Then it deals with poisoning wells.

Diplomacy

"You men make a lot of work." "What is the matter, love?" "You keep me busy sewing buttons on your vest." "Well, dear, you feed me so well." "What is the diplomatic husband's response?"—Ottawa Journal.

The Canadian Shock Troops

Worth of Men Has Been Recognized and Honored

Until recently, little was heard of the work of the Canadian troops in France since the beginning of the great German drive last March. Little was heard, and perhaps little was known, to the average Canadian father and mother, it was enough that lists of casualties during the early summer were being poured in as rapidly as heretofore. All through our attention has been mainly directed to the physical safety of our boys rather than to what they might be accomplishing.

We do not think this attitude would be appreciated by our soldiers. They are not allowed to tell us in their letters what they are doing, but that does not mean they are not intensely interested in their work and wish it to be heart and soul with them in it. We must remember that what are to us vague descriptions of what are seemingly unimportant skirmishes are life and death events to them, in which their complete interest has been moved, as well as their lives endangered.

We owe it to the soldiers who have given us a name and place among the nations of the world, and to no other, to respect their work by as complete an understanding of it as we can obtain.

As a matter of fact, the Canadian section of the front was attacked last March in the great drive like all the rest of the line. But our own army very few were so severe the Germans found it irresistible and desired.

As a result the Canadians were removed from the front line altogether, it seems, and given a special training in "shock tactics" to be used as special storming troops in General Foch's offensive, when that should arrive.

It has arrived now, and that is why we read today first of the Canadians with the Australians alongside them, driving the Germans back near Arras, and then of the Canadians alone, driving the Germans back near Arras, and then of the Canadians alone, driving the Germans back near Arras.

They saw the colonials were used to facing great odds, handling big forces in emergencies, tackling big works of all sorts. Not for nothing have we been told of the Great North, woodmen of the wilds, settlers of millions of square miles of new land, builders of continental-wide railroads and St. Lawrence bridges. The worth of our men as storming troops has been recognized and honored.

We have been to the British what they always lacked, and the French—the dash for a brilliant attack. But Tommy Atkins, like the old "Blighty," is as ever the staying power. What we win by a dash he holds by the steady grip of a bulldog. He sits tight about our little band of shock troops, supporting, financing, organizing, protecting, praising to the last watch, and solidifying the situation for the allies all over the globe. And for every home with blood on its lintel in Canada, there are one hundred homes that mourn in England.

Aerial Nets to Snare Planes

German Raiders Fear Encounter With Nets

It now appears quite certain that both the Germans and the French are making extensive and regular use of aerial nets to bag enemy night raiders. Some time ago the use of captive balloons and aerial steel nets was reported as being tried by the Germans, in an effort to capture British airmen. More recently reports have come from France, telling of the use of aerial nets at certain points which are frequently passed by the methodical German raiders. Indeed, it is even said of these nets that the German airmen, fearing nothing so much as an encounter with the slender steel web in the blackest of the night, have been greatly discouraged in their work. On the other hand, a recent item in L'Aerophile tends to cast doubt on the efficacy of the aerial nets employed in the defence of Paris.

Advertising in Japan

Among the entertaining bits that a reader notices in his study of Japanese newspaper advertising are these:

"Gosh dispatched expeditiously as a cannon ball."

"Parcels done up with such loving care as a wife bestows upon her husband."

"The print of our books is as clear as crystal; the matter charming as a singing girl."

"Customers are treated as politely as by rival steamship companies."

"Our rivals and satins are as smooth as a girl's cheeks and colored like the rainbow."

It ought to be possible, remarks a contemporary, to get advertisements read in Japan without scattering them round next to "pure reading matter."

ENEMY COMMAND HAS 600,000 FEWER MEN THAN IN APRIL LAST

MAN-POWER AT KAISER'S DISPOSAL IS DWINDLING

Germany Has To Select Her Recruits From the Physically Inferior Classes to Send Against America's Hundreds of Thousands of Fresh Young Fighting Men

I was talking with a former professor of Cologne about Germany's success in finding substitutes for the articles of war she lacked. This prisoner of war, himself a chemist, was discussing the number of German inventions of this sort, when suddenly he said:

"But we cannot get a substitute for men."

He voiced the thought uppermost in the mind of every thinking German—the dwindling man-power at the Kaiser's disposal. Into the theatre of war America is throwing her hundreds of thousands of fresh young fighting men, and Germany has not the like to send against them.

After I came with this German professor I obtained the authoritative figures as to German power on the western front. They show that the German command has about 500,000 fewer men on this front than he had in April and the general quality is much poorer, due not only to the fact that Germany has had to seek recruits from the physically inferior classes, but also to the fact that the German army's morale is at the lowest point of any time in the war.

But far more significant than the reduction by 600,000 of the number of German troops on the western front is the fact that whereas just last March the German command had nearly 1,100,000 men, it now has only 500,000. The German command has 204 divisions, which are being maintained at an average strength of 15,000 by the most heroic efforts, coming out the civilian workers, etc. This totals 3,060,000.

One may take the well-known estimates of French and British strength in Europe and add up nearly 2,000,000 Americans in France to see what a preponderating strength they have in the west. They have, as soon as the Americans are in fighting trim.

Of the 24 German divisions on the western front, 114 are in the line. There have been a month or more of rest, and 71 are in the back areas, being trained and being cleaned up on the British and French front. There are perhaps 20 of these 71 divisions in shape to be thrown into the fight at a pinch.

Of the thirteen reserve divisions there are in good shape—three are rated as first class, six second class, two third class, and two fourth class. All the divisions on the western front have been engaged in battle since July 15.

Of the 114 divisions in the line, the 1st division of the Crown Prince Rupprecht has 32, that of von Boehm has 32, and the Crown Prince has 32. The 1st division of the Crown Prince has 12, and Duke Albrecht has 16. Von Gallwitz and Duke Albrecht command the front from Verdun to the Swiss border. It was von Gallwitz who was whipped by Pershing when the Americans took the St. Mihiel salient.

Horse Meat for Canada

Dominion Government May Be Asked to Sanction This Move

A movement to permit the sale of horse meat in butcher shops throughout Canada has been started by the Dominion government in form of a recommendation, according to the Alberta horse, cattle, sheep and swine breeds' associations. Horse meat, sold under the same regulations as obtain in various European countries, would result in great economic saving, the Association says, adding that "thousands of light horses that have ceased to be of economic value consume large quantities of feed annually."

Figures dealing with the sale of horse meat in Europe were made public. They showed that one-sixth of the 600,000 families in Paris eat horse flesh, and that Germany, far back as 1909, used 79,000,000 pounds of horse meat annually. In 1909 Germany also consumed 6,900 dogs, the figures showed.

General Pershing's Pig

The French papers delight in anecdotes of the good relations between the U. S. soldiers and the peasants. One of these stories, which is printed this week, is a "big military automobile tour through a French village on its way to a United States camp," says a Lyon paper. "Unfortunately a pig belonging to an old peasant woman strayed into the path of the automobile. The old lady later a letter came for her enclosing a check for 100 francs, and saying 'The pig was killed, and the death of her pig.' The signature was that of Gen. Pershing."

Kaiser's Trip to Paris

It might be mentioned here, says a U. S. Great Britain paper, that Walker has quoted Bugs Bace as having once said that the Kaiser is the only guy in the world who has been a round-trip ticket to Paris and used the last half first and still has the first half.

British Inventive Genius

Nation Has Right to Be Proud of What Has Been Accomplished

Lord Sydenham, in opening the British Scientific Products Exhibition at King's College, Strand, London, recently said that when the war broke out Great Britain was in more danger than she has ever realized, and perhaps that was as well. Our army had proved its worth and our navy had been our salvation. Looking back at our disadvantages at the start, the nation had a right to be proud of what had been done. A deadly blow had just been struck at the enemy which made victory almost certain. The air force had developed into a mighty engine of offence, and he believed that they would before long take the war into the very heart of Germany. Yet on the outbreak of hostilities we were worse prepared with industries necessary to supply fighting forces on sea and land than ever before. Germany had, with deep design, penetrated into our whole commercial system and obstructed the work of most of our key industries. The country awoke to that fact, and now we could fairly say that there was not a single branch of the industry of war in which we could not beat Germany. We must take care that our key industries were never again surrendered into the hands of foreign nations. England had never been lacking in inventive power, but Germany had turned out science to the fullest possible account while we had failed to apply it to our national advantage. He hoped the results of our experience would show us that we really stood in the van of scientific progress and that our advantage would be maintained and secured.

Cabot and the Murman Coast

Was Reached by Explorers in Sixteenth Century

The landing of allied troops on the Murman Coast would have greatly interested the seamen of the sixteenth century, when so many attempts were made to discover a northeast passage to Asia by rounding the north coast of Norway. After several years of search, the discovery, Sebastian Cabot, promoted a movement which eventually resulted in the capture of three ships and more than one hundred men, in May, 1553. Sir Hugh Willoughby, to whom was entrusted the command of the expedition, died of the entrance to the White Sea, and eventually landed at a suitable place on the Murman coast. He decided to winter there, but he and his men succumbed to the Arctic conditions.

However, another member of the expedition, Chancellor, whose ship became separated from the other two, finally landed on the shores of the Murman coast. It was von Gallwitz who was whipped by Pershing when the Americans took the St. Mihiel salient.

"A woman can't keep a secret," snarled Mr. Gabb. "She can't," replied Mrs. Gabb. "Why, your poor father, I knew that you were engaged to me 16 months before you knew it!"—Ottawa Journal.

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

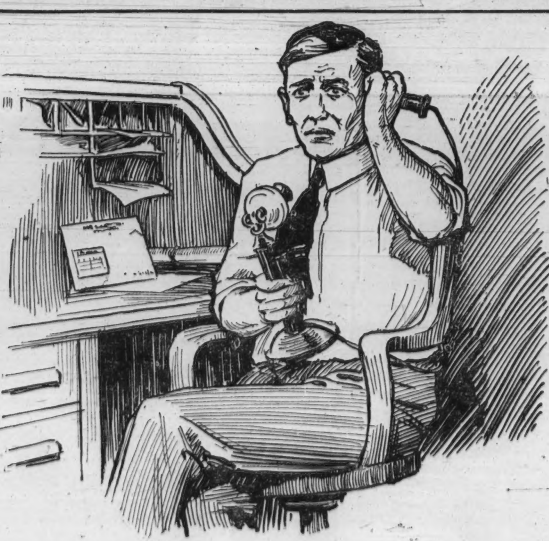

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual look-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attend the making of this great medicine. Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best. The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterilized glass bottles. It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound are constantly being published attesting to its virtue.

W. N. U. 1231

GOOD HEALTH is as necessary to the winning of the war as good guns, good shells and good airplanes.

And it is not alone the health of the soldier that is important, for this is watched and guarded as never before. But there is the health of the people at home, who are manufacturing and sending forward the supplies which make it possible to continue the fight.

Men and women have never in the world's history carried such mental and physical burdens as they do today.

From Ministers of State, Commissioners, Manufacturers, all the way through the enormous staffs of men and women workers, there are problems to be solved and schedules to be lived up to that mean enormous anxiety and strain on the nervous system.

It is under these conditions that many resort to the use of narcotics to produce sleep or stimulants to whip up the tired nerves. In either case the temporary help is obtained at an enormous expense to the nervous system.

The only rational treatment is that which goes to build up new nerve cells and new nerve force, and supreme in this class is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Most people know about this food cure, but all do not realize that it has revolutionized the treatment of diseases of the nerves by the new idea of supplying to the blood the elements which go to the creation of nervous energy and vigor.

The most common indications of nervous exhaustion are inability to sleep and rest, failure of digestion and loss of appetite, nervousness and irritability. You arise tired in the mornings, and are easily annoyed over little things. You put off the duties of the day because you lack the energy to take hold and clean them up. It is evident that you must have help to overcome this condition, and there is nothing so sure to befuddle you as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

For your protection the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, are on every box of the genuine Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A flag and nine crowns was just right for Coleman. The high altitude is natural.

The Farmers' Alliance in Ontario declined to buy Victory Bonds because they were not taxed. Wonderful how far people will go for an excuse.

Brewing operations of all kinds in the United States will cease upon December 1; until further orders, and no further unmalted grains can be purchased for brewing purposes.

"A special compilation made by 'The Financial Post' shows that for the forty-seven months of war the fabulous sum of $1,874,710,900 worth of foodstuffs was exported from Canada."

The Minister of Agriculture in Quebec advises farmers of that province that only hogs weighing at least 150 pounds and not more than 250 pounds be marketed and only oxen weighing 500 pounds.

Municipalities have now the power to appoint Fair Price Committees in publishing lists of food commodities in their municipality and also for fuel, clothing, boots and shoes, and other items of common house hold expenditure.

A recent cable from Germany announces that the placing of hoarded foodstuffs on the market has caused a decided lowering of prices. Fats and greases are quite plentiful. Numbers of the German people evidently had adopted the military spirit and decided that food hoarding was profitable and quite up to the moral standard of their rulers.

The withdrawal of the order necessitating the purchase of flour substitutes with flour will be generally appreciated. The merchant will be relieved of the attempts of customers to evade the regulations, and the customer will be relieved from buying commodities that in a good many instances they did not want. Standard flour will still be milled exclusively, but it is considered there will be plenty of this to go round.

It cannot be too often emphasized that candy makers, sugar manufacturers and public eating places are admirably supporting the Food Board policy of saving sugar, but there are thousands of "slackers" in private homes. There must be because there is so much hoarding. No doubt much of it is done without serious reflection. The home allowance should be 2 pounds a month for each one in the family. There is ample sugar coming into the Dominion but it comes in measured quantities only—that is all that is permitted under an international arrangement. Housewives can use corn syrup and glucose. They are the best patriots who do what the country wants doing.—Canada Food Board.

France, so far as food is concerned, is in a bad way; worse than in 1917-1918.

Peace does not alter the food demands upon Canada and the United States, but in fact increases the load and the demand for economy.

According to a statement issued by the Department of Labour, the average cost of the weekly budget for an average family in Canada for staple goods during the month of August was $13.41, as compared with $13 in July, and $7.68 in August, 1914.

The Returned Soldier.

Of all the solutions advanced for reconstruction and the absorbing of the returned soldiers an observer must notice the underlying selfishness exhibited by the different theorists in the fact that they invariably want the returned men placed so as not to interfere with their particular business or job.

Just imagine a man holding a sinecure under the government, or any other individual comfortably established, saying to the returned soldier: "You risked your life for me, now take my place here and I will get out and make a fresh start." Such a man would be regarded as plumb crazy, and he would also be the enemy of every other man similarly situated.

Of course we are very anxious to see our heroes satisfactorily placed on Peace River farms, or anywhere else, so long as our own little graft is not disturbed, and if things could be worked out so that our position would be improved in consequence, so much the better.

For a good fat salary we will acquire any number of men to figure but the problems of the returned soldier, but they will always figure him away from their own preserves,—at least most of the plans advanced look like this to us and to many other people.

The war shook a little of the selfishness out of most of the people but any idea that there is not lots of it left everywhere is a decided mistake. If selfishness was eliminated or even scotched the returned soldiers would need no help from the Government—they would be absorbed naturally and much more successfully than by any other means.

As long as half a billion Canadians can be successfully floated everyone will be satisfied to let the government look after the returned men, and we will have a repetition of the South African scrip deal, the soldier getting about one-twentieth of the result. When payment of these millions begins in earnest, however, there will be a vastly different feeling in the country. Fortunately, a large percentage of the men have places waiting for them, and a real effort on the part of individuals with government assistance will absorb the balance without any real menace to existing conditions. If the matter is left to the government it will be the most expensive and wasteful undertaking that has yet been experienced in Canada.

Peace But Not Plenty.

(Canada Food Board.)

The end of the war has come, but Canada must not relax her efforts to increase the production of food. In addition to the Allies, whose productive powers have been hampered by the war and who need imports from this continent to build up a reserve, the people of the neutral nations must also be considered. Canada Food Board calls attention to the fact also, that the countries of the defeated enemy nations have also to be considered as in some cases millions of helpless people are facing starvation. Counting Russia, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, Bulgaria, the neutral countries, and France, Belgium, Italy and Great Britain, a grand total of 250,000,000 people are short of food.

Canada will have a hungry market for her agricultural produce and our greatest possible effort to maintain and increase production will be none to great.

To Formulate national plans for meeting the new and critical conditions in the live stock industry accompanying restoration of peace, some of the leading Canadian live stock men and representative meat packers are being called to a conference by Hon. T. A. Crerar Minister of Agriculture. Those who have been watching the situation realize that Canada has the opportunity of placing her live stock industry on a broader, and a sounder basis than ever before. The war has stimulated live stock production in Canada. An even greater stimulus is expected to develop with the restoration of normal commercial communication, as the breeding stock of Europe has seriously declined during the war, in nearly all countries. A heavy demand is bound to be made upon this continent for meats and breeding stock for some years to come.

The Minister of Agriculture is calling upon farmers and live stock men to maintain their operations on the war-time scale.

In the twelve months ending September 1918, Canada exported $163,488,362 worth of animal products and $440,742,430 worth of agricultural products, a total of $604,230,792. In addition to her farm products she exported over $33,000,000 worth of fish. In the first 47 months of the war Canada exported $1,874,701,900 worth of foodstuffs. This effort has helped to maintain the Allies and it has helped Canada to maintain her war efforts. The call to Canada is still for production and by increased production Canada can easily pay her billion dollar war debt and maintain Canadian prosperity.

Feeding milling wheat to live stock or poultry is forbidden by the Canada Food Board.

The November issue of Rod and Gun published by W. J. Taylor Limited, Woodstock, Ont., is on the newsstands and is replete with good things for the sportsman reader and lover of outdoor life generally. "Canadian Game Trails," by Hubert Hutton, "The Moose Call," a story of two narrow escapes, by G. F. Hiltz, "Carcass," the record of a unique experience in the winter wilds, by A. Sturtevant, and "Humors of the Hunt" by George R. Belton, are some of the contributions to the story section of the magazine. Other articles follow and the usual departments are well maintained. An article on the making of moccasins is illustrated by F. V. Williams who is also the cover design artist. Guns and Ammunition contains the first instalment of "The National Matches at Camp Perry" by C. S. Landis. Rod and Gun Mechanics for Trappers is a page of illustrations and supplements the department Along the Trap-Line which is continued in this issue.

No Cane Sugar Permitted

All Iced Cake Must Come From Maple Trees

Time was when Canadian fruit cake, pound cake, layer cake, was made "pound for pound." During the past few months confectionery manufacturers have been struggling with the problem of making first class cakes with only 60 per cent. of sugar to the pound. Now the problem is intensified and they are ordered to make cake with only 40 per cent. sugar.

Ice cream, as may be imagined, is a great source of worry. The few cakes that sport chocolate or nutty tones are made with maple. Now no cane sugar is permitted for this purpose. The Canadian production of maple sugar is limited in spite of the efforts on the part of the food board to increase the maple last spring, and the additional demand from confectioners has already made serious inroads into existing supplies. Lots of maple sugar will have to be made next season if we are to have cakes at all in Canada.

South Africa's Fine Part

Not Limited to Achievements on Her Own Borders

South Africa has conquered German territory than all the allies combined. German Southwest and German East Africa are huge areas of rich country only lacking development.

But South Africa's contribution to the war is not limited by her achievements on her own borders. She raised 40,000 troops for these campaigns, but she sent 60,000 to other war theatres including Europe. She suppressed a rebellion of her own citizens and she prevented another gaining headway. She has built miles upon miles of new railways and now controls the second largest railway system under one management in the world. She has become self-supporting and food shortage is unknown. Her exports to Great Britain of maize, wool and leather have grown enormously. From the Vancouver World.

Allowances Made Equal

The anomaly which dates back to the days of Trafalgar, of paying the dependents of the man in the navy a higher allowance than the relatives of men of similar ranks in the military forces, has been rectified. Hitherto the sailor's family in pay has been favored by the admiralty authorities. One of the reasons given being the alleged greater chance of promotion in the navy. Public opinion has now forced the navy authorities to give way, and in future Jack will be on a level with Tommy in regard to his wife's allowance.

DOESN'T HURT A SPECK LIFTS OUT SORE CORNS

My, but it's glorious relief you get for a crusty old corn when you touch it with a drop or two of Putnam's Extract. Mightily quick action on corns is what you get from Putnam's. It is a regular cure-acts on a new principle—dissolves the calloused parts, draws up the corn so you can peel it off with your fingers. No pain or soreness either when using or afterwards. Putnam's is guaranteed to lift out any corn. Costs but a quarter at any drug store.

There Is No End To Giving

Stay-at-homes are Asked Only To Give Money, Not Their Lives

Is there no end to giving? There is not—until the great end. The desire that any advertiser in the United States ever wrote was the line: "While some one gives his life, what are you giving? Think a minute."

What are you giving, you who run loose and go about your virtually undisturbed affairs? What are you giving when you think a minute of the fellows who fight Germans and coolies, rats and trench fever, gas and shrapnel, and die and suffer and atrocious suffering or miserable discomfort?

What have you given or what can you give? The demands upon your money do come rapidly. It is the way they have to come. It represents the pressure which is put upon you. Even this pressure is an indication of our own good fortune. We are here, being asked for your money but not your life.

This is the way in which the loose coin of the nation is shaken out of its pockets; the fastidious in which loose habits are ironed out and community discipline imposed. From the Chicago Tribune.

Didn't Need Telling

"They were very fine pearls, but the connoisseurs' friend seemed halfhearted in his appreciation of them."

"Man," he cried, when Mrs. Jones had gone from the room, "why did you let me give you such a great necklace for her birthday? Do you know that pearls mean tears?"

"Shouldn't I do?" was the answer. "She cried till she got 'em." Montreal Herald.

Weeds for Hun Food

Luxury-loving German General Had Recipes for Soldiers' Mess

In Essey, one of the towns captured by the German general, there has been a mess hall fitted out with fine furniture, a hotel, range, fine china and silverware which were left behind. The officers of his staff had individual coffee cups with the Iron Cross and pictures of the Kaiser and Hindenburg on them. Two silver forks with Hindenburg's likeness engraved on the handle had been used by the general. The general had electric lights and call buttons, and an elaborate assortment of food. The haste of the flight is shown by the fact that he left behind two cases of booze beer. In the office of this same luxury-loving general were found large numbers of copies of a pamphlet for distribution to the soldiers, telling how to use weeds for food. The weeds in it set forth as good enough for food. There was a recipe to make soup from nettles and salad from sorrel, and many other recipes of the same sort. At the bottom the leaflet said the soldiers should develop the use of weeds. The leaflet was of this use will be valuable after the war.

Captured letters said the American note signed "Wilhelm," calling on all good Germans to mourn for eight days the death of the brave and illustrious ally, the Sultan of Turkey.

The war as a whole is a big picnic, and regretting they did not catch their lot with the Germans, and expressing sympathy with the Americans did not pick a winner and side with the Kaiser. One letter from a German officer to a soldier, congratulating him for his service, was a recipe for a new dress, saying that was the cheapest he could get for the soldier. The prevailing high prices in Berlin.

In a captured document is a very interesting letter from "Wilhelm," calling on all good Germans to mourn for eight days the death of the brave and illustrious ally, the Sultan of Turkey.

THE BUSINESS WOMAN

Today, more than ever before, is woman opportunity. Many new occupations have been opened to her, which, before the war, were deemed unbecomingly to fill. And truth to tell she has risen to the opportunity, and now she is a business woman. Business in former times confined to men. But as women are subject to more fluctuations of health than men, many will be handicapped early, if they regard their health requirements too lightly.

Long hours and prolonged mental or physical fatigue thin the blood and weaken the nerves. Such conditions as women are subjected to under the stress of war can be endured by a full-blooded constitution. This is as true for men as for women. The woman worker, in any line, requires her blood replenished frequently. She needs new, rich blood to keep her brain and body trying conditions of business life, and to fortify her system against the wear and tear of the war. This applies to the woman in the home, who, perhaps, has more worries and anxieties than usual. So let all girls and women take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills promptly at the first approach of pallor, lack of appetite, headache or loss of energy. They are the most effective remedy for the blood. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 30 cents a box or ten boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Machine Gun Nest Hidden in Cemetery

Germans Dug Out for Position Beneath Concrete Pedestal of Cross

In a cemetery near Limey, just within the German lines, previous to the attack of September 10, American troops have discovered German machine gun nests hidden in the concrete pedestals of a large cross. The Germans had dug in along the centre of the foundation and constructed machine gun positions at three places facing toward the French lines. The cemetery is on a hill commanding a view of the country to the south, and the Germans assumed that if an attack were made the cemetery would not be subjected to artillery fire.

When the Franco-American offensive started the Germans held the machine gun nests in the cemetery as long as possible, but were compelled to retreat in haste before they could use the guns. So hurried was the enemy's retreat that several machine guns were found in the cemetery by the allies. The cemetery was not hit by shells and the cross still stands.

Aviators' Slang

The British aviator is an adept at inventing slang terms. The latest addition to the vocabulary of the R.A.F. are "to dash along at a reckless, unbecoming pace," to go "down to break down," "banking" is shelling; "insurance agents" are enemy bombing planes; while "an attack of severe vertigo" is the feeling that follows the explosion of a shell before one realizes whether it is high explosive or high explosive and gas mixed.

Not His Function

"I want to know," said the grumpy-faced woman, "how much money my husband drew out of the bank last week."

"I cannot give you that information," answered the man in the cage.

"You're the paying teller, aren't you?"

"Yes, but I'm not the telling payer,"—Boston Transcript.

Mobilizing Woman Power

Will Need 2,000,000 to Take Place of Men

It is estimated that 600,000 women have so far in the war displaced men in American industries. This is a small number compared with the 4,538,000 women of Great Britain who are engaged upon war work. It is a very puny army, compared with the 8,000,000 who would have to be enlisted for the industries if we maintained the British proportion. Before the middle of next summer, the war women must be mobilized to take the place of men, or there will be a slump in the manufacture of war material. The draft of the 21-31s continues to strip factories of needed workmen. The new draft will take thousands more men. At the same time, the newly built plants for munition making are finished, and ask for their quota of wage-earners. Manufacturing, mining, transportation—they are all speeding up. There is only one way out of the difficulty. The reservoir of feminine energy must be tapped. . . . The federal government ought to begin at once to make it clear to every one that women must be leaped upon for their serious instruction, to arrange where the war boards think they ought to be.

In England accidents are far more frequent. These figures show. For the purpose of preparing statistics, the total number of flights and casualties in England. In the royal air force in Canada, there were 36,253 flights, with 13,566 hours flying, during which there were also 59 crashes, 36 of which were admissions to hospital.

A sad coincidence in connection with the influenza fatalities was the death of Mrs. Ricardo and Mrs. Savario. Their husbands had just purchased a ranch in partnership at Leduc, and intended moving there in the spring. The loss of their wives leaves them in such a position that they can scarcely proceed with their purchase.

A correspondent has furnished us with a rather unique disposition of the crowns acquired in the Victory Loan campaign. If they were actual crowns instead of imitations on cloth, and were worn as suggested to us, we would be worse off in Coleman than they were in Europe before the war—that is if the dignity of the crowns was upheld.

which it was thought better for the representatives of the provinces to discuss among themselves.

Apparently, there is little doubt of the intention of the Dominion government to give the western provinces their natural resources, but the proposal has resulted in a suggestion from the representatives of the eastern provinces that, in the event of this being done, the elder provinces should receive something additional in the way of subsidies.
